A RATTLING PACE.

The Springfield Union, referring to the campaign now in progress in this state, says: "Vermont will be in a position to set the pace, which promises to be a rattling one."

Nothing short of a "rattling pace" should satisfy the republicans of this state in the present campaign. Not because there is a likelihood of Vermont's going democratic—not because there may be a tight squeeze for the republican candidates—but because "our friends the enemy," basing their hopes on a small amount of anti-convention objections, are conducting a still hunt and will spare no effort to cut down the majority; and, further, because a large vote for Fuller and Stranahan means an old-time majority, and this in turn means a beneficial impetus to republican work in other states later in the season.

There should be no mistakes. Every republican—office holder or private citizen—should acquaint himself with the new voting machinery, and make it most effective so far as he has a hand in its operation. There are abundant indications in most parts of the state of a lively canvass. Chairman Baldwin says the calls for speakers come in thick and fast, and the committee is kept busy supplying them. Rallyes are now being held in every county.

Thus far so good. Let the work go on enthusiastically. Let Vermont set a pace that will stimulate the republicans of other states to the best possible record when their turn at the polls comes.

SENSIBLY COMPROMISED.

That there is better way to bring about an understanding between capital and labor than by resort to violence, as has been done at Homestead and Buffalo, was recently demonstrated at Pittsburg, Pa., where iron manufacturers and their disaffected employees have made mutual concessions and reached an agreement as a result of which fourteen large mills are to be started up and employment given to forty thousand men. Standing out firmly at first, both sides soon realized the folly of antagonism, and met to confer regarding the situation. A point here and there yielded by each has prevented the paralyzing of that branch of a great industry and saved incalculable suffering among the families of the working men.

Who shall say that both capital and labor may not gain much by candid discussion of the relations between them, the laying aside of bitter prejudice, and a full realization of their dependence one upon the other?

HAZING AT WEST POINT.

Hazing has become a relic of the past in most, if not in all, of our colleges, and it surprises one to read that it still thrives at West Point. The lower classes there have to submit to all sorts of indignities and occasionally brutal barbarities, and resistance only brings more persecution. Occasionally one is found courageous enough to kick against the pricks, and such a one is J. W.

Broatch of Omaha. He resisted the insults and cruel practices until he found his position so intolerable that he resigned. In last Sunday's New York Herald is an article by Mr. Broatch describing in detail how the students are treated, and how little chance they have for redress. Mr. Broatch makes some startling revelations, and the government authorities cannot afford to countenance such practices at what has previously been considered the model military academy of this country. In these days of advanced civilization hazing should be relegated to the past; and one who has passed the rigorous entrance examinations at West Point ought to be allowed to complete his course without being treated like an inferior being by older classmates.

FULLY PERSUADED.

The Northfield News, which has posed as an independent sheet, willing to see good things in all parties whenever the latter put them on exhibition, has come out plainly in advocacy of the republican state ticket, and also as a defender of that party's national candidates. The editor announces that although he was reared a democrat, he prefers the republican policy of protection rather than the other fellows' tendencies towards free trade. It is pretty safe to say that a great many independent papers and voters will take a similar stand this fall. The loyal and business-like character of the Harrison administration throughout has had a wholesome effect, and will prove persuasive to many an independent mind, and the almost persuaded will become fully so.

McKINLEY WILL SPEAK.

A grand republican rally is booked for Burlington August 30, at which Gov. Wm. McKinley of Ohio, protection's noted advocate, will deliver the principal address, and speeches are expected also from others prominent in the republican party. It is purposed to make this gathering a most effective one, and the Republican League, under whose auspices the rally will be held, desires and expects that republican clubs in every part of the state will be represented on this occasion. The presence of Gov. McKinley will prove an attractive feature, and every Vermont-er will feel drawn to the Queen City at that time because of a desire to hear the distinguished statesman.

Southern aristocracy is, like a certain brand of sarsaparilla, "peculiar to itself." Col. H. Clay King of Tennessee, who has been convicted of murder, sentenced to death, and saved therefrom by the governor's interference, is said now to be kicking very hard because the penitentiary authorities will not give him whiskey to drink instead of water, the common prisoner's portion; and is also very much against wearing striped clothes, because, as both he and his wife have decided, such a costume is beneath the family dignity. Evidently the Tennessee prison officials are not up in their regard for the proprieties.

The authorities of New York state are now having their inning with riotous strikers, and the scenes enacted at Buffalo during the past week have been most disgraceful. After the experiences at Homestead it would seem that the calling out of the New York troops was delayed beyond the point of discretion. With hundreds of hot-headed strikers burning and destroying property at will, the necessity for prompt action was urgent. The striking switchmen struck many a hard blow at their own cause, and by their deeds of violence forfeited claims to public sympathy.

The next state senate promises to be an unusually strong body if the republican nominees are elected next month. With such leaders as Major Josiah Groot, ex-Treasurer Du Bois, Col. Fletcher D. Proctor, not to omit our Caledonia county members, Senators Nichols and Lincoln, legislative business can be expedited and poor laws defeated. In another week we can begin to speculate on the leaders in the house, though one's calling and election to this branch is hardly sure until the returns are in.

Rev. F. E. Clark, president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, has, with his wife, recently left San Francisco for a trip around the world. They will return in season for the next international convention, at Montreal, and it is believed that an arrangement will be made by which, at a given signal, the societies in every nation and every language under the sun will sing simultaneously, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

The Manchester Union speaks with sarcasm of "republican pretensions that the democracy is for free trade." The Union can scarcely be posted concerning its party's record, or it would not have so spoken. When the democratic candidate for governor of New Hampshire denounces protection as "dishonest" and "infamous," the Manchester paper's sneers fall a little flat.

Since O. M. Tinkham of North Pomfret returned from his official trip to Europe, where he went to examine the "protection democrats" the Louisville Courier Journal tells the so-called "protection democrats" that their room is better than their company; that they are not democrats at all, but republicans, and that if they are honest they will vote for Harrison. It plainly declares that the democratic party has no use for them.

The exhibit of fish at the World's Fair will include every known species, including live whales and sharks and the beautiful colored fishes from China and Japan. There will also be a fly casting tournament lasting six days.

O. B. Boyce of Barre, who has been nominated for senator, was once editor of the Essex County Herald. There is no telling what good fortune may strike a man after he has gone out of the newspaper business.

The town clerk is a person of some consequence, under the new ballot law. At least his responsibilities have increased considerably, and lack of familiarity with his duties might tangle things up some in the coming election.

amine into the question of work and wages, he has written some interesting articles for the New York Independent. Mr. Tinkham got hold of some hard facts that it might be well enough for American voters to hear about.

The republicans of Brighton have nominated Hon. Geo. N. Dale as their representative in the next legislature.

THE NEW LAW.

We publish below something concerning the new voting machinery which the people of this state will have to use next month in expressing their preferences at the polls. Town officers who are specially interested should lose no time in informing themselves and carrying out in full the provisions of the law.

By the provisions of the ballot act of 1890, a new duty is imposed upon the several town clerks in Vermont, viz: the preparation of official ballots for officers to be filled by towns. This includes, for Freeman's meeting next September, two ballots—one for representative to the general assembly, and the other for justices of the peace. The law provides that, when a caucus is held for the purpose of nominating candidates for these offices, such nominations shall be certified to by the presiding officer and secretary of such caucus and filed in the town clerk's office at least ten days and not more than twenty days preceding the first Tuesday in September (the 6th this year). But as many towns do not hold caucuses for nominating candidates for these offices, the new law has provided a plain and simple method for placing the names of candidates upon the official ballots, viz:—A number of voters representing one per centum of the entire vote polled at the last Freeman's meeting may sign a certificate of nomination containing the name of the candidate, the office for which he is nominated, his place of residence, and the political name which the signers may select. (not over three words), and each signer must make oath that he is a voter and a resident of such town. But no person can sign more than one such certificate, which is to be filed with the town clerk not more than twenty (Aug. 17) nor less than ten days before Sept. 6 (Aug. 27), whose duty it shall be to place such name on the official ballot.

Whether these certificates are filed or not, the town clerk must procure official ballots equal in number to 300 for every 50 votes polled at the last Freeman's meeting. If no certificates are filed, of course the face of the ballot will contain the names of no candidates, but the indorsement on the back: "Official ballot, town of —, Election, Sept. 6, 1892, —town clerk of —" must be printed and contain the signature of the town clerk in fac simile. He is also required by section 21 to prepare full instructions for the guidance of voters, how to obtain ballots, mark them, the manner of obtaining assistance when the voter is unable to read or mark his ballot, etc., and together with sections 34, 35, 36 and 37 cause the same to be printed on cards, called cards of instruction, and furnish at least five copies to the presiding officer at the same time that the official ballots are furnished. Cards of instruction must also be provided by the clerk of the county.

Five sample ballots containing the names of candidates for town representatives and justices of the peace must be furnished by the town clerk, to be posted in and about the polling place.

The board of civil authority in each town, composed of the selectmen and justices of the peace, who are the election officers (vide sections 78 and 79, R. L. 1880), must hold a meeting for correcting check list, not later than Monday, Aug. 22. In most instances, Saturday, August 20, has been selected. The board may adjourn from time to time, but no name can legally be placed on the list after midnight of Saturday, Sept. 3.—Young men coming of age after midnight the 3d, and on or before Sept. 6, and otherwise qualified, have a legal right guaranteed by the constitution to vote, and their names should be placed on the list on or before Saturday, Sept. 3, and the Freeman's oath may be administered at that time or on election day.

The election officers shall, five days before election, appoint two republicans and two democrats as ballot clerks, whose duties are to furnish voters with ballots as needed. One voting booth for every 75 voters on check list, at least three feet square and provided with a foot-wide writing shelf, shall be furnished by the election officers; also three ballot boxes, one box for state, county and congressional ticket; one for town representative; and one for justices of the peace. As the law provides no particular width or style of ballot, mistakes will be greatly avoided by having these different ballots of different widths, with the clerk's indorsement in different styles of type.

A voter must make an X in the small square at the right of the name of each candidate for whom he desires to vote, and if the name of no such candidate appears printed thereon, he may write such name in the blank provided, but an X must be made at the right of the name so written. If two or more crosses are made where but one candidate is to be voted for, the ballot for that office will not be counted. The box for town representative is to be turned at 3 o'clock as provided under the old law, and if no choice is made, a second ballot is to be taken in like manner, and so on until a choice is made, or adjournment had by unanimous consent. The boxes containing the other votes are to be turned at 5 o'clock and canvassed.

SAINT JOHN SBURY.

If you want to buy a shoe,
And are coming down this way,
Come and look our stock through,
You will find that it will pay.
Our Ladies' Oxfords can't be beat.
They are just the thing to stand the heat.
And the price? Why that's so low,—
Well, just come in and we'll then to you show.
And in this our children must find a place,
For they are sure to suit your taste.
Heavy or light, just which you please,
The price is right on any of these.
Now Douglas speaks and says I'm the best
My Ladies' or Men's will stand the test.
And for boy's you never will find,
Anything like that shoe of mine.
And now you know it has sometimes been said,
That poets very often want for bread,
But we by our honest and upright deal,
Have never wanted for a daily meal.
